SEWN UP: a tapestry depicting the experiences of psychiatric patients will be unveiled later this month for an exhibition commemorating World Mental Health Day. The Bethlem Tapestry is a six-month project initiated by Kent consultant psychiatrist Sukhi Shergill. It features images and texts produced by patients in Bethlem Royal Hospital’s psychosis unit (pictured). The tapestry will be unveiled on September 22 at the Bethlem Gallery, Bethlem Royal Hospital, Beckenham, Kent. It will be exhibited until October 15 and will then be installed on one of the wards.
